

Adam Masheter

Assistant Head – Raising Standards Lead

Adam has considerable experience as a Head of Science and Senior leader in the UK and overseas. He has several research publications in the field of Carbon Nanochemistry as part of his Master's Degree in Chemistry from Oxford University. He also has an MA in educational leadership, and is passionate about improving outcomes for under-privileged students, having completed his early teaching years in challenging urban settings as part of the Teach First programme. As a teacher and leader, Adam has a strong record of raising attainment and implementing research-based teaching and learning strategies at department and whole school level.