

Assia Narot

Assia is an experienced educator with prior management and leadership experience and a track record of increasing exam results. Assia has worked both internationally and at a range of successful schools in London and Essex. She is proactive in ensuring continual development of her professional skills, having taken part in the Mayor of London Stepping into Leadership campaign, NPQML, NPQSL and examining for AQA.

Assia maintains an outward facing approach to developments within her responsibilities, making cross-curricular links with departments internally and collaborating with external organisations, such as universities, subject network events and learning trusts.

Invested in her own personal growth, Assia is interested in psychology, counselling and interior design, as well as being a University of London graduate of English . In the classroom, she is able to offer students a fascinating insight into human nature and build confident writers and readers, who in turn can use their own liberated voice to make an exciting contribution to the world.