

Stewart MacDonald

Head of Year

After Leaving University I worked in the Media Industry in various roles. After teaching a mixed media course, my passion switched to helping and supporting young people within the educational setting. Starting out as a Teaching Assistant working with SEND pupils, I quickly progressed to teaching students at KS4 and KS5 Media Studies. My main success came with working with children who suffered with barriers to learning, so I retrained to become a learning mentor.

All these experiences, skills and vast knowledge of education make me the ideal candidate to become and Head of Year at London Design Engineering UTC. I believe that if you instil confidence in young learners, these are traits that can propel them through to adult life.