NQT - Computer Science

After completing her degree in Information Systems at the University of Westminster, Uzma pursued her professional career in the IT industry as a web developer. With over 10 years of experience as an active, practising web and application developer, Uzma gained a good understanding of workplace technologies and methodologies, particularly for people-focused websites.

Her belief is that young people should be given the opportunity to be taught by someone with a high level of practical knowledge and experience. To comply with her belief and provide students with such opportunity, she partook a teacher training course at the Institute of Education UCL. Her aim is to enable students to make the best of their talents by teaching them the theory behind the use of computing and technologies, its real-world value, and how it can be applied in the workplace.
